Modern Slavery Pledge

At blu-3, we firmly believe that businesses have a significant role to play in ending modern-day slavery. This means we make a substantial commitment to supply chain transparency and human rights due diligence enabling us to eliminate exploitative behaviour.

What is Modern Slavery?

Modern slavery in 2020 involves the process of recruitment and movement of people through the use of threats, deception and coercion. It can take many forms, but one of the most common is forced labour.

This is a global problem and it is happening RIGHT NOW in the construction industry.

Slavery in the Construction Supply Chain

The Modern Slavery Act, introduced in 2015, requires all businesses with an annual turnover of £36million or more to report on the steps they are taking to identify and eradicate modern slavery. This is to ensure companies across full end-to-end supply chains are complying with the law.

Despite baseline legislation, blu-3 feels that the construction and infrastructure supply chain can go even further to enhance its social responsibilities. With this in mind, we are encouraging our partners, who fall under the £36million threshold, to join with us in a pledge to voluntarily abide by the Modern Slavery Act, whether applicable to their business or not.

By agreeing to this pledge, blu-3 and its partners can significantly reduce the risk of modern slavery, across our supply chain and beyond, ensuring that within our power no individuals suffer from this practice. We hope our partners and counterpart businesses will collaborate and join us in this pledge.

If you agree to this, please have a responsible authorised member of your company sign the pledge below:
